Four Hands promotes Jerome Kearns to Executive Vice President and COO

AUSTIN, TX JANUARY 3, 2010- Industry leader in lifestyle home furnishings, Four Hands, today announced the promotion of Jerome Kearns to executive vice president and chief operating officer. Kearns joined Four Hands as chief operating officer in 2008.

In his expanded role, Kearns will have the primary responsibility of spearheading efforts to streamline the product development cycle, warehouse and logistics operations and daily operations of the company. Kearns continues to report to Matthew Briggs, president and CEO of Four Hands.

“Since Jerome joined Four Hands two years ago, he has not only added value to every aspect of the company but has truly established himself as a natural leader who exemplifies our companies core values,” stated Matthew Briggs, CEO and president of Four Hands. “He has immersed himself in the business and has become an invaluable asset in helping guide the direction and strategy of level within the company our organization.”

Kearns was previously with Motion Computing where he was the senior vice president of global operations. This change coincides with Kearns handing over the leadership of the sales force to Chris Miller, who joined the company in 2010.
